DIVIDING IT UP

America has moved a long way toward the dream of "sharing the wealth."

Back in 1929, 5 per cent of the population had 34 per cent of the wealth. Today the 5 per cent has only 18 per cent.

That is democracy at work, and makes for a better American way of life.

KOREAN VICTORY

Chinese Reds are showing less and less desire to stand and fight against United Nations forces in Korea. The answer may be found in the over-all fire-power of the UN armies. The combination of artillery, tanks, air and naval bombardment, cuts into Red morale. United Nations forces have won a great victory over communism, and it is a victory for a splendid team. The cause of world peace has been served by this concrete illustration that the free nations can and will work together to thwart aggressors. The world needed that illustration.

BLOODMOBILE

Appomattox County had a most commendable record on the occasion of the first visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile in February. Not only was the recruitment of donors very successful but the visit itself was handled smoothly. The local Red Cross Chapter was complimented for a job well done.

Now, it must be repeated, for the Bloodmobile is soon to visit us again. Most of the same committees will serve, and we hope they will receive the cooperation they merit.

"DAVIDSON NIGHT"

The management of the Lynchburg Cardinals, of the Piedmont League, has designated Monday, June 4, as "Crawford - Davidson Night" in order to give Appomattox fans an opportunity to honor a "home town boy" who has made good in the Piedmont League.

Davidson plays with the Norfolk Tars, and is a long-ball hitter. He will be recognized at the home-plate at 8 P. M., just before the game starts and Appomattox fans will be recognized. So here is your chance to share in a nice gesture.

WE MUST NOT FAIL IUR FRIENDS ABROAD

(From The Atlanta Journal)

President Truman's request of the Congress to vote a big new foreign aid program early in 1951 of $8,500,000,000 is certain to encounter some vigorous opposition. Mr. Truman wants $6,250,000,000 of the total allocated to help strengthen the defenses of our allies about the world. He seeks $5,240,000,000 for military aid and $1,050,000,000 for economic aid for the Middle East and Northern Africa, Asia, and Latin-American countries.

Much of the opposition to the President's request will stem from those who see no wisdom in advancing aid anywhere outside the United States. It will stem from those committed to a policy of isolationism and who believe that this nation should not participate in the affairs of other countries. This is an unwise and utterly dangerous attitude for Americans to take, and never more dangerous than it is today.

The immediate need, as the President told Congress, is for building up the free world's defenses so that the Kremlin will be balked in its hope of easy conquest. How often in the recent past we have seen demonstrated the Soviet policy of encompassing its weak prey. Mr. Truman also rightly points out that economic aid is needed, because "growing prosperity in the free countries will frustrate Soviet political warfare."

That we cannot win peace or thwart attack through appeasement was grimly demonstrated in the outbreak of World War II. Nor can we afford to attempt to seek security in a policy of isolationism. If through our failure to extend aid to our friends abroad and in Latin America we lend encouragement to the Soviet policy of aggression against weak nations, we shall ultimately find that threat at our very threshold.

* * * We should make the utmost effort to reduce our non-essential expenditures at home and we should take every precaution to see that money sent abroad is wisely allocated and effectively spent, but we cannot now afford to spurn the appeals of our friends for help, when our aid may mean their preservation—and our own.

Many father-son teams operate the home farm with only a friendly understanding about division of land, costs, and income. But what happens to the partnership if someone brings a lawsuit? Or if he dies unexpectedly?

To answer these and related questions, and to draw up recommendations for suitable written agreements, a study of father-son farm agreements has been made in 14 Virginia counties.

Concerning representative government, the great Englishman, Edmund Burke, made a statement which could stand publishing and republishing many times: "Your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judgment; and he betrays instead of serving you if he sacrifices it to your opinion."

WATER UNDER PRESSURE VALUABLE FARM AID

Water under pressure makes life on the farm easier and more economical, says J. L. Calhoun, associate agricultural engineer at V. P. I.

He points out that the average farm family without running water spends about 240 hours each year to carry 20 to 30 tons of water for kitchen use only. "When you add the water needs on washday, for livestock, and other uses," he says, "it becomes a disagreeable and time consuming task."

Besides saving labor, improvements such as bathrooms and modern laundries, contribute to better health and provide comforts that benefit the entire family.

Water under pressure also increases farm profits. For instance, automatic drinking cups in dairy barns can increase milk production 10 to 15 per cent. Hens lay more eggs, and hogs and beef cattle make faster gains, when water is always available.

An electric water system will also supply enough water to irrigate the farm garden. Even during seasons of normal rainfall, irrigation increases yields and quality of garden vegetables. It is also an aid in fire protection when the fire is discovered in the early stages.

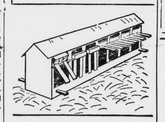
Turkey Nests



To prevent fighting among hens and to check egg breakage, a movable section of nests has been devised by a number of turkey raisers. The entrance guards are carefully balanced and rotate on pipe. When a hen enters a nest, the guard closes, giving privacy until she leaves. The top is removable and the nests are sometimes built on low runners so they can be moved easily.

Holstein Holds World's Record for Butterfat

The world's record for butterfat production is held by a Holstein cow, Carnation Homestead Daisy Madcap. This animal produced 1,412.6 pounds of butterfat from 34,553 pounds of milk, showing an average test for one year of 4.1 per cent. This is equivalent to 1,767 pounds of butter and 16,671 quarts of milk. On one day of the test the animal produced 123.3 pounds of milk.

Just "Can't Get Over" Easy's Fence

Few years ago, Easy Roberts took a lot of kidding when he planted that hedge of Multiflora roses — along his property line. Folks said he was getting pretty high-falutin'.

But today plenty of people who laughed at the idea slow down when they drive by Easy's place —just to look at those roses. Most beautiful sight you ever saw.

Practical, too! The hedge is a good four foot high now, and at least five foot thick—even a shoat couldn't get through that prickly mass of shrubbery. Best of all, it cost less than ordinary fencing. (Might be well worth your while looking into.)

From where I sit, there's no sense in looking down on something just because it's different from what we like. For instance, some people think ice-cold lemonade's the best "cooler-offer" on a hot day. Some of us would rather have a glass of beer. The important thing is not to "hedge ourselves in" against other people's likes and preferences.

Uncle Sam Says

Remember—you can carry on safely with this axiom—"The U. S. Defense Bonds you buy for your country's defense also give you personal financial independence." That will provide money to buy a house, or educate your children, or support you when you retire. You can gamble on this—if you all. So, go to your company's pay office, NOW, and sign up for a regular Defense Bond purchase program through the Payroll Savings Plan.

New Potato Products Are Helping to Hold Markets

New potato products and improved distribution methods are helping to hold markets against competition from other foods. Potato chips, frozen French fries, pre-peeled potatoes, as well as an aggressive advertising campaign offer hope to potato growers.

Grading and labeling have been effective in publicizing Maine and Iowa potatoes, and it is hoped that the campaign will eventually help to reverse the downward trend in potato consumption which has taken place in the past three decades.

Potato chips now account for about 9 per cent of all potatoes consumed, taking about 22 million bushels in 1950. This represents over 80 per cent of the potatoes processed for food, and constitutes a $200 million business.

Pre-peeled potatoes, treated to prevent darkening, and used chiefly by restaurants and institutions, are meeting wide acceptance.
